

Tim O'Neill is Special Counsel with the Longmont law firm of Lyons Gaddis Kahn Hall Jeffers Dworak & Grant PC, which he joined in August 2017. His practice is focused on business, real estate, employment, legal ethics, and government practice. Prior to joining the firm, Tim worked as Assistant Regulation Counsel with the Colorado Supreme Court's Office of Attorney Regulation, where he investigated and prosecuted attorney discipline cases. Before spending five years with the Office of Attorney Regulation, Tim practiced with a firm in Boulder.

A New York native, Tim came to Colorado by way of Wisconsin and Texas in 2003, and moved to Longmont in 2007. A musician in his past, Tim still likes to pick up instruments of all kinds, whenever possible. He plays guitar, mandolin, banjo, ukulele, piano, saw, and just about anything else he can get his hands on, for his wife, Krystin, and three daughters, Maddy (14), Julia (7) and Annalise (5), and whomever else happens by the house. He also enjoys playing hockey at the Longmont Ice Pavilion, and bowling in a local league.

Tim is excited to have recently become a Board Member of the Longmont Symphony Orchestra, joining this January. He is also a Board member of Operation Military Stockings, a Longmont-based nonprofit that provides care packages to troops stationed overseas.

He is thrilled to be supporting the LSO and hopes that you will, too. He hopes to be lifting the baton come May 9, 2020, with your support.
