

Season Ticket Sales

This is generally the time of year when we are announcing our upcoming season performances and promoting season ticket sales. However, due to Covid-19, the Longmont Symphony is awaiting guidelines from the state and the school district on when we will be allowed to have concerts at Vance Brand Civic Auditorium and under what capacity restrictions. Once those decisions are made, we will be able to proceed with concert planning.

With probable future capacity restrictions, we have decided to suspend our season ticket sales for 2020-2021. When we are allowed back into the auditorium, we will be selling individual tickets for general seating for each concert. This will give patrons the opportunity to sit where they are most comfortable while maintaining social distancing. Please be assured that your regular reserved seating will still be available for our 2021-2022 season, when we will once again be able to offer season tickets. We thank you for your understanding and patience as the Longmont Symphony Orchestra prepares for this new normal in performances. We look forward to joining you and the community of Longmont as soon as possible, bringing you music that continues to ensure the support you have provided to the LSO for the past 54 years.
